Once upon a time, there was a little bird named Bella. Bella loved to sing and play in the forest. One day, she saw a group of animals trying to climb a tall tree to reach some delicious fruit. Bella wanted to help, so she flew to the top of the tree and picked some fruit for the animals to share.

But as she was flying back down, she saw a hungry fox lurking nearby. The fox asked Bella to give him the fruit, but Bella knew he would just eat it all himself. She refused, and the fox tried to grab the fruit from her. Bella quickly flew away, but she dropped some of the fruit in the process.

The animals below were disappointed that they didn't get to eat all the fruit, but they were proud of Bella for being brave and keeping them safe from the fox.

The moral of the story is: It's important to be kind and helpful to others, but also to be smart and stay safe. It's okay to say "no" if someone is asking for something that isn't right and it's important to stand up for ourselves and others when we need to.
